A Deep Dive Into Supplier Portals

Supplier portals were supposed to streamline payments, but for most credit teams, they've become a daily bottleneck. Every portal has different requirements, hidden rules, and constant changes that can push payments back by weeks.

This session explores the current state of supplier portals, the challenges credit teams face, emerging trends in the market, and how AI agents are beginning to transform portal workflows. We'll discuss practical insights about managing portals at scale, navigating constant changes, and thinking strategically about the future of invoice-to-payment processes.
